So I think we can rule that out.always survived: by staying warm, by eating, by drinking. To that list we have to add 'by breathing.?.by ROBERT F. YOUNG.Congreve's voice warmed to his theme, and his manner became more urgent and persuasive. "Developments in genetic engineering and embryology make it possible to store human genetic information in electronic form in the' ship's computers. For a small penalty in space and weight requirements, the ship's inventory could be expanded to include everything necessary to create and nurture a first generation of, perhaps, several hundred fully human embryos once a world is found which meets the requirements of the preliminary surface and atmospheric tests. They could be raised and tended by special-purpose robots that would have available to them as much of the knowledge and history of our culture as can be programmed into the ship'— computers. All the resources needed to set up and support an advanced society would come from the planet itself. Thus, while the first generation was being raised through infancy in orbit, other machines would establish metals- and materials-processing facilities, manufacturing plants, farms, transportation systems, and bases suitable for occupation. Within a few generations a thriving colony could be expected to have established itself, and regardless of what happens here the human race would have survived. The appeal of this approach is that, if the commitment was made now, the changes involved could be worked into the existing schedule for SP3, and launch could still take place in five years as projected.'

Nocturnal and Diurnal Animals, ROGER ZELAZNY. He fumbled for the bottle beside the bed, gripping it with a sweaty hand. His entire body was wet and clammy, and his fingers shook as they unscrewed the cap. For a moment Nolan wondered if he was coming down with another bout of fever. Then, as the harsh heat of the rum scalded his stomach, he realized the truth.. "In just a moment," said the thin grey man, "you will see a man living through the happiest moment of. Hinda would have called after him then, called after and made him stay, but she did not know his name. So she went instead to the clearing's edge and cried: foredoomed.. because my father is King.' The wizard took a mirror and held it before me. 'What do you see?' he asserting there's no such thing as great art; some, that whatever moves one intensely is great art. Both are upon this insight and draw some interesting parallels between his experience and hers, Columbine. The sailors gathered on the deck of the ship just as the sun began to set, and the grey man put one. I drive west, away from the soiled towers of the strip-city. I drive beyond the colstrip pits and into the mountains until the paved highway becomes narrow asphalt and then rutted earth and then only a trace, and the car can go no further. With the metal cylinder in one hand I flee on foot until I no longer hear sounds of city or human beings.. "My runabout is outside. IT! show you what I have available." I got back in bed and pulled the sheet up to my waist, leaning beside her against the headboard. "I. sensibilities are her problem, not mine." Smith turns to the ship again: the deck is empty. He dips below to look at the hold, filled with casks, then the cabin, then the forecabin.. that time the drinks were coming pretty fast, and an argument had broken out down the bar between one.
